That's just what 8-year-old known to many as Princess Isis-Imon is doing! She is letting her light shine as she strives to be a prominent child performer. Photo shooting from the age of 3 months; Isis-Imon is no stranger to the camera. In fact, her natural connection with the lens is just one of her many talents. Isis-Imon has been watching the industry from the side lines all a while single mom and manager Telia S. Lambey trained models, ran a self operated advertising and promotional company, little Ms. Isis was always right there by her side taking it all in.

ITS: Did you always want to do what your doing now as a child performer?

Isis-Imon: Yes and No, my mom used to put me in all these different pageants, and contest when I was really little, well you know, littler, and I would just be scared to death and thinking to myself "oh my god, oh my god" I am going to run out of here! But, my mom was always struggling and pushing and wouldn't stop believing in me. Yes, because I liked meeting other famous people and I want to live in a mansion with my family and me.

ITS: Where do you want to be? I mean what is your main interest in the industry since you have so many things you can do well?

Isis-Imon: Well everyone says I'm a really good actress, but; I like taking pictures the most and doing fashion shows, that's where I'm most comfortable and have the most fun dressing up in different outfits. I really love it!

ITS: If you could do anything in the world to make a change what would it be?

Isis-Imon: I would travel around the world mostly Africa and use my money to help the children that are starving, don't have parent's to take care of them and I would feed them, clothe them, and use my talents to raise money for them to not suffer anymore. I would start a school for children and always give to charity.

Spoken like a true star! Isis-Imon's career is formulating and she is in the mean time preparing for the doors to open wider. Free spirited, strong willed and adorable, she is sure to be a success so stay posted and keep her in your prayers as she travels through the journey of super stardom!
